

ABOUT NEVADA'S MINERAL DISPLAY

SOMETHING THAT SHOULD INTEREST EVERYBODY IN THE STATE

Interesting Account of the Display That Has Been Made in Francisco

Occasional reference has been made to the recent exhibit from the State of Nevada in the San Francisco Ferry Building. Yesterday the Journal obtained the following items of interest from Major Ingalls, who had charge of the exhibit:

Other and valuable additions were added to the exhibit after its arrival at San Francisco, and every county was represented. The space allotted to Nevada, 20x8 feet, and 10 feet more was secured, but even this was found too small to properly display the minerals.

The booth was artistically trimmed with the colors of the K. of P. order, to which was finally added a profusion of Nevada sagebrush. A large amount was reserved to present in little twigs to former residents, all of whom and many visitors expressed pleasure to receive the same.

The general opinion of the Nevada exhibit and of its booth by the San Francisco press, visitors and County Exhibit Committee was that it was one of the best in the nave of the ferry building.

The Elk head loaned by Hon. John Sparks attracted much attention. It was conspicuously mounted in the upper center of the booth. There was one hundred and twelve feet of shelving filled with minerals, from cave and pyramid on the north west to Searchlight district in the southeastern portion of the State.

The central front space was given to the ores from Tonopah, the two-year old camp. The specimens from this camp attracted no doubt the most attention of all the exhibit. Henry Cutting and Clay Peters represented the Tonopah Exchange and mines. They were frequently present to talk up that camp.

The ribbons of the K. of P. colors divided the Tonopah ores from the others. The next attraction in point of interest was from the Wedekind mine, Nevada Sulphur Company the J. & K. mine, Ely district. White Pine county, Humboldt and Elko county mines. A fine collection was also from the Con Virginia and Yellow Jacket mines of the Comstock.

The large picture of Lake Tahoe, loaned by E. H. Prentice, added greatly ly to the attraction of the exhibit. The model of the underground workings of a mine, loaned by Jas. Yerlington received a great deal of attention, as did also a fine collection of large photographs of the old pioneers of the old Comstock mining camp. The latter has been brought to Reno with the Nevada exhibit.

The register of names shows representatives to the Nevada exhibit from the leading cities of Europe, Australia, Hawaiian Islands and from nearly every part of the United States. There was a constant request for information about the mining, agricultural and stock interests of Nevada, and opportunities for investment, and a great demand for printed matter setting forth the resources of Nevada. It was very embarrassing to say to all: "We have nothing, but give your names and we will send you some later."

The average attendance at the Nevada exhibits is estimated to have been over ten thousand visitors daily. Half a dozen live men could have been kept busy answering questions about Nevada's resources.

William McMurry, chairman of the county committee, was constant in his courtesies and efforts to surprise the most of the visitors and it no doubt will prove a source of much profit in the future. Hundreds of parties expressed a purpose to visit Nevada with a view of investment. Mr. McMurry kindly and constantly aided those in charge of the Nevada exhibit. This, with the acquaintance of Mr. Prentice with the county committee and the railroad officials, had much to do with the success of our exhibit, assisting in every way those in charge of it.

The booth was carefully taken down and, with the minerals, all shipped free of charge to Reno, and is now in good order to be put up again as soon as a building can be arranged for which should be without delay.

The opinion of the San Francisco journals, her business men and the prominent men from eastern States, expressed to those in charge of the Nevada exhibit, was that it would no doubt do our State great good and bring her to the attention of capitalists who will seek investment there in the future. So may it prove.

Doings at Wedekind

Tomorrow or Tuesday the Sparks mill will begin its first clean up by roasting the sulphides. The amount of values in this first run is difficult to estimate, but it should be at least $100,000.

The clean up will be celebrated by the greatest two day's festivity that the State has ever seen. The fun will begin on the 10th. Bees and nuttens will be barbecued by the dozen and preparations will be made to banquet thousands of people. Every man woman and child in Reno, or in Nevada, for that matter, is invited to be present. Quite a number of them will partake of Mr. Sparks' hospitality. There will not only be feasting, but music and dancing for old and young. —Journal.

ANOTHER FROM THE COM-STOCK

The Fulton Foundry Added to The List

The Fulton foundry is to be torn down. A large force of men went to work this morning on the old structure and its entire disappearance is only a question of a few days.

The reason for its demolition is that the owner, A. J. McCone, says that it is too expensive an institution to support, considering the amount of foundry work now being done on the Comstock.

A small plant will be kept up at the Union foundry, which is also the property of Mr. McCone, and what work is required will be done there. The machinery from the Fulton will be snipped away for use in the foundries at San Francisco or Los Angeles in which Mr. McCone is interested. The Fulton foundry was one of the oldest institutions of the Comstock. John McCone, who originally owned the old stone foundry on the road below Silver City and near Johnstown became the proprietor of the Fulton foundry in the early '70s, and transferred his entire business to the Fulton foundry.

After his death it passed into the hands of his heirs, and has been conducted ever since under the management of his son, Alex. It was run on a scale befitting the palmy days of the Comstock, when big jobs from the various mines were constantly required, and it proved an immensely profitable business. Of late years the gradual decline in business caused the profits to fall to next to nothing and the amount of work required could be done at much smaller cost at the Union foundry. Hence the move.

It is understood that the present corps of office employees at the Fulton foundry office will move to San Francisco, there to be employed in another concern in which Mr. McCone is interested. —Chronicle.

FIRED THE PORKERS

SWEET REVENGE WORKED ON A CHINA RANCP

A Reward is Offered For The Offender

Early yesterday morning a fire occurred at a China ranch in Kings canyon that is conducted by Ah Gee. According to the story of Mr. Gee, another son of the Flowery kingdom secured revenge by burning the pig pen and its contents, which consisted of nineteen pigs.

How anyone could think of a more deadly revenge than this on a Chinaman, is the puzzle. It took a Chinaman to do it. When the fire was discovered, Gee started for the pen to rescue the highly prized delicacies, but when he landed, the fire was in full sway and beyond help. When going to the fire, he caught sight of what he declares was the firebug, and while he is not sure of the identity, he believes that he can lay his hands on the guilty countryman.

He has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the party, and if there is any amateur sleuth in this section that wishes to show his ability, here is his chance. Gee claims that had he time to secure his pistol which his wife had locked in a trunk, (a tip that some other wives make take), he would have been able to land his man without the aid of a reward. As it was, his faithful watch dog hung onto the culprit sufficiently long to worry him, and he believes that if found, the man will bear the marks of the dog.

As Gee is a prosperous farmer and is considered O. K. in the business world, he will pay the reward should the guilty party be run to cover.

Public Auction

Next Saturday will witness a public auction in this city that will attract attention from all classes. Mr. J. Belcove, who lately returned from San Francisco with a well selected stock of jewelry, precious stones, plate ware, and in fact everything that goes with a high class store, will place the entire stock on the auction counter, to go to the highest bidder.

As he is a town merchant, the people can rely on what he says, and its safe to state that the goods will be far above the average. He has been busy for the past two weeks unpacking the goods, and from the way the shelves are filling up, the public will have the choice of an immense stock when the auctioneer begins to talk.

Notice.

No shooting or camping will be allowed on my property without a permit. Positively no feeding from barn or stacks allowed.
